The officers of the Eastern Star lodge for the year of 1926 gave the retiring matron, Mrs. A. W. Beck, a surprise party at her home on Wednesday evening. Bunco was played during the evening. Mrs. Dora Sablin won the first prize. Mrs. Beck was presented with a gift from her staff of officers. Late in the evening dainty refreshments were served.

Mrs. William Runyard entertained about thirty relatives and friends at a shower at her home on Saturday afternoon in honor of her niece, Miss Ida Mae Runyard. The afternoon was pleasantly spent in music and pleasant converse. A silk umbrella was placed on the table and all the gifts placed under it. Later the guests helped the bride-to-be open the many packages containing beautiful as well as useful gifts. Dainty refreshments were served.

Sam Tarbell and Louis Shults left last Friday morning for Lakeland, Florida, where they will spend the winter. They are making the trip by auto. A card received here by friends mailed Monday from Murphyborough, Tenn., reports the progress of their journey.

Firemen Seek to Improve Service

How to improve the service of the local fire department by adopting every possible means to increase efficiency was the subject which occupied the minds of the fire department members at the meeting Tuesday evening.

Just at this time of year the fire hazard is extra great, and a single minute may mean the saving of a building or its destruction. With the idea of saving the time that would elapse between the time some fire department member is called on the telephone and the blowing of the siren, it was unanimously voted by the department to have a man sleep at the fire station during the winter months. Samuel Westley accepted the job as night man for this season.

Firemen are now seeking device to keep the siren free from ice and snow, so that it will never fail to sound an alarm. Recently during a blizzard the siren became clogged and froze, and firemen are anxious to see that this does not occur again.

The state convention of volunteer firemen is to be held at Quincy, January 11, 12 and 13. No delegates to attend the convention were up pointed Tuesday night.

Nixon's Candy Shop To Open Wednesday

Popular Sweet Shop to Reopen in New Location December 22.

Nixon's Candy Shop will reopen for business in the new location, Morgan building Wednesday, Dec. 22. It was announced today. The Nixon store has enjoyed remarkable success since the opening two years ago in the Keulman building, during which time the place has been under the management of John Lucas, who will resume his duties as manager in the new location. For some time past there has been urgent need for larger quarters and this fall the Morgan building was leased and the work of fitting up the building for the business has been in progress since the lease was taken in September.

The interior has been remodeled and decorated to fit the needs of the business, the decorating being done by Clyde Wentworth and the lighting fixtures installed by Stanley Thompson.

GRADE SCHOOL NOTES

A new galvanized fence has just been put up along the east line of the playground. This is a good looking improvement and the board is hopeful of being able to continue it along the north border in the Spring.

Quite a large piece of property is in process of being transferred from Arthur Maplethorpe to the school. It consists of about twenty thousand square feet of land on the east end of the Maplethorpe property and is directly north of the present border line of the playground. This property is about the last available for playground purposes, and at that, the playground is none too large for the number of pupils enrolled this year.

Seven More Shopping Days

Santa Claus Abroad in the Land—A Pleasure in Antioch.

A survey of Antioch stores this week finds them daily decorated and elaborately stocked for the holiday trade. Throngs of busy shoppers are found in almost every store, especially during the evening hours. Antioch merchants, thoroughly awake to the realization of Santa's tentative preparations than ever before to meet the increased demand for gifts. The stores themselves have been transformed into veritable fairylands, and shopping in Antioch is proving to be a genuine pleasure, for all stocks are well arranged and displayed and gift suggestions are found in abundance.

Again this week the News carries many advertisements of Antioch merchants who are making an effort to render a genuine service to the Christmas shopper and to please all in the matter of gift selections regardless of the size of the purchases made.

Only seven more shopping days until Christmas. Shoppers are being urged to make their selections now and avoid the masses in the usual eleventh hour rush. Stores open every evening until Christmas.

Senior Class Scores Hit

"Follies of '26" Was a Wow. Say Those Who Saw the Show Last Friday Night.

The staid and dignified class of '27 paused in their serious business of being seniors long enough last Friday night to give admiring friends and relatives the treat of their young lives by their unique presentation of a popular program of mirth and music, the whole bill being entitled "The Follies of '26."

According to the advertised program, there was a great variety of acts, featuring comedians, acrobats, dancers, singers and musicians. Among the entertainers were Morley and Nixon, Miss Hauck, Schunne and Clara Mitchell, Mr. Kay, Mr. Watson, Simpson and Schunne, Mr. Stark, Morley, Thompson and Hall was male quartette, the Pepper Twins, Hilma Kosing and Lena Sehora, Clara Mitchell and Forbick, and Lois White and her boys. Each number was greeted by a hearty round of applause.

"I have paid more money to see considerably less in the city," said one who had seen the show, and in the remark he seems to have voiced the sentiment of all who attended. The seniors and their friends who assisted, and Mr. Stark and Mr. Jepsen who coached the actors, deserve a great deal of credit for this very successful entertainment.

The proceeds will go to the senior class fund for their annual gift to the high school. The seniors have not disclosed just what their gift will be.

P. T. A. Discusses Building Project

Public sentiment seems to favor the enlargement of the Antioch grade school building, according to an open and general discussion of the project held at the Parent-Teachers' association meeting on Monday evening of last week. Interest in the matter was indicated by the large number of teachers, parents and patrons attending the meeting.

Attendance figures for the past ten years were presented which indicated that at least two more rooms have been needed for many years past. If modern ideas of maximum attendance per room had been carried out.

The clerk of the school board then presented figures relative to the assessed valuation of property in district No. 34 and the amount of some items of school maintenance. A general discussion followed, with Barney Nabor, Gene Hawkins, Wm. Christian, Swan Christiansen and others speaking and all agreed that the enlargement of the present school building is a necessity, although other plans were suggested for adding more room.

The school board was delighted with this response and will spare no effort to try to better conditions, the members say. By visiting schools in Lake, Kenosha and McHenry counties, the board hopes to pick up some idea of the latest improvements in school buildings. The board members have expressed themselves as being open-minded on the subject. Suggestions from all interested will receive careful consideration.

DIBBLE'S HAVE PLEASANT TRIP TO FLORIDA

FL. LAUDERDALE FLA. Dec. 8, 1926.

Dear Friends: Thought I would write a few lines to you all, about our trip. The roads were fine, excepting a few detours. Made fine time. The weather was fine, excepting two days of rain, but the roads were concrete so it didn't hinder our traveling on.

The scenery was surely beautiful especially over the mountains. We crossed Mt. Eagle, and had our lunch on Signal mountain. We stopped at a spring of water, it was clear and cool. We drank our fill and gave our horses a drink also. They surely responded after that and got to the bottom before we realized it.

The cotton was in bloom and being picked when we got to Georgia. We saw loads of it on our way through Georgia. The roads were dry. No mud to contend with this time. When we got to Florida, the Poinsettias and Hibiscus blossoms were in full bloom. The drive along the Indian river was wonderful. The ducks play along the shores, no hunters to worry them. We passed acres of orange groves near Orlando. The trees were loaded with fruit.

The weather is perfect here. Had one rain since we have been here. Have been in bathing nearly every day. It's great sport. Have gathered many beautiful shells. We have driven to Hollywood, Miami, Coral Gables and different places to see the ruins of the storm. It certainly wrecked many homes and uprooted trees. Many homes are nothing but kindling wood.

We spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Fowles at Coral Gables. Among the guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Runyard and Mary, Mr. and Mrs. George Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dibble and A. P. Little. Saturday night we enjoyed a dance at Coral Gables and Sunday we drove to Miami Beach and had a swimming party. Among the beauties on the beach were: Mr. A. P. Little. He said "he enjoyed the Atlantic very much but his suit was picked too soon." All had a splendid time and came home tired and happy.

Well I will close for this time wishing our Antioch friends a Merry Christmas. We remain, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dibble.

S. Boyer Nelson made a trip to Chicago Wednesday afternoon where he was met by his brother, C. C. Nelson, of Canton, Ill., who will visit with his brother and family here until the first of the year.

Zero Wave Ends Friday, is Promise

Weather Forecaster Predicts Relief From Cold Tomorrow.

Zero weather, arriving here Monday, snow and ice already on the held the central west in its grip four days, snow and ice already on the ground, and the chilly winds adding greatly to the discomforts of the arctic weather.

A dozen deaths throughout the central states, five in Chicago, and numerous fires have been reported, the Chicago departments answering 123 fire calls in 31 hours Tuesday and Wednesday.

Temperatures here since Monday when the mercury tumbled to below the zero mark, at the rate of 1 degree every fifteen minutes, have ranged from zero to 12 below. Yesterday Denver reported 6 below, Wyoming and Montana 20 below, and in some parts of Minnesota 38 below zero.

Relief Promised Friday.

Milder weather and a sharp break in the zero wave is promised for this locality Friday, according to reports from the Chicago weather bureau station.

Coal piles have dwindled and plumbers have been busy repairing damage brought by the cold wave. No fires have been reported in this vicinity.

Anderson Tells of Florida Ruins

Subdivisions Are Dead—Climate Florida's Greatest Attraction, Says Tourist.

In my last letter I stated we would soon take a trip to Miami, to see some of the remaining ruins of the Hurricane.

When we reached Palm Beach we found we could not take the Ocean or outer drive as it had been torn up by the storm. We did not see much damage until we reached the outskirts of Fort Lauderdale, where we saw many houses flat on the ground. Very nearly all of the trees were uprooted. We also saw the garage where the walls of the upper story had blown away, and cars could be seen standing on the second floor. From this point on, ruins were visible everywhere. Miami property was fairly well cleaned up.

Miami Suffers Most.

We were told that 7,000 truck loads of rubbish was hauled away the first three days. Of course Miami Beach was hit the hardest. We saw big boats and scows three and four blocks up on the dry land and one Five Master boat was nearly out of the water a block north of the McAllister Hotel. A large submarine chaser was up in the City Park Coconut Grove was a sight that we will never forget as all the beautiful palms and trees were all blown down and at least a dozen boats and scows were still several blocks inland and in one place a big scow was standing next to a fine home surrounded with palm trees. Everywhere all of the big and good homes have tile roofs and in every case they will have to be replaced as most of the tile was torn loose. All the cement block houses, whether they were one or two stories high, now lie flat on the ground. The bark on the pine trees was blown off and those still standing are lashed with sand. The wind was so strong that for blocks it moved the street car track on the crossway into the bay.

New Florida Arising From Ruins.

As near as can be ascertained the water rose 18 feet. Miami buildings and road repairs will soon show but little signs of the disaster but it will take years for the trees and shrubbery to come back. The week we were in Miami a closed car with four people was found that had been blown off the crossway and two more dead at Moor Haven.

"Keep Smiling" is Florida Slogan. None of these incidents reach the (Continued on page 10.)

Playing before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a game in the local gymnasium, the Wilnot high school basketball team went down to defeat Friday to their traditional rivals, Richmond, by a score of 35. As the score indicates, the game was featured by remarkably close guarding it being perhaps the most brilliant exhibition of defensive playing ever seen on a local floor. The first half gave the local boys a shade, ending 63 in favor of Wilnot, and the strong defense of Wilnot was particularly noticeable.

People in our town are not able to travel much, but are good listeners when anyone returns from a trip, and pick up about as much information as there is to be had. "MUSIC WITH A PURPOSE" is the theme of this talented trio, on the regular staff of W. L. S., the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation station, Chicago. This trio is composed of Goldie Gross, cellist; Doris Wittich, pianist, and Theodore Katz, violinist and former concert manager of the Chicago Civic Opera Company. Their concerts are of the presentation variety, each telling a story in tone. One evening they take the life of a great composer, presenting the music as it was inspired by the events of his life. Again the trio depicts in tone the life of a race, playing the folk songs, dance airs and ceremonial music. This feature is called "Picture Concerts." One evening they deal with the heaviest classics while the following night may find them playing fox trots.

The Table Sweeper Is a Suitable Present

The crumbing of a table has always seemed to me a rather awkward procedure. Even after the old-fashioned brush and tray disappeared, in favor of a smooth metal surface that carried the crumbs briskly before it. It always seemed bothersome to me to have to make room at the edge of the table for the mild to hold her crumb tray, in order to gather the crumbs into it.

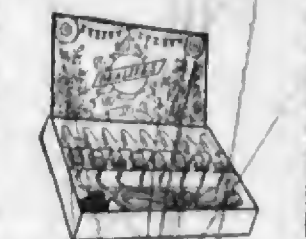

And now a better way has been found to clear a table quickly and quietly of the crumbs that have gathered there, without the use of any tray at all, or of elbowing one's guests sideways while the crumbing goes on.

Showing the Way

AS Columbus demonstrated to the courtier who sought to detract from the credit due him for his discoveries, anyone can stand an egg on end—or cross strange seas—after someone else has shown the way.

The task of creating a nation-wide telephone service, like that of discovering a new world, is one for the pathfinder and the pioneer. The telephone as the modern American knows it, has been made possible by the doing of a multitude of things in the realms of research, engineering and business administration that had never been done before; by patiently working out an endless succession of seemingly unsolvable problems.

Only because of its willingness and ability to lead the way in telephone development has the Bell System been able to provide America with a nation-wide, universal service that sets the standard for the rest of the world.

A MESSAGE of GOOD WILL

By ALBERT ASH ALLEN

HARK! Now the bells, on Christmas Day,
Bring back the joy of happy times—
Some spirit, which had gone away,
Now hovers in these merry chimes;
With peace on earth, good will to men—
Thus is the message heard again.

Hark! Now the bells, on frosty air,
Ring hope and comfort, love and peace—
The Spirit of the Christ is there,
To bid the worldly tumult cease;
With peace on earth, good will to men—
Thus is the carol heard again.

Hark! Now the bells o'er vale and hill
Reach to the islands of the sea
In one sweet voice of "Peace, be still,
And let thy burden rest on Me!"
Thus peace on earth, good will to men
Is, in the echo, heard again!

Christmas Courage

Florence Harris Wells

TOM WALTON was lonesome. It was Christmas Eve and he had no near relatives on earth. Seeing a light in the office of his friend, Doctor Barnes, he ventured in. He had scarcely entered when the Doctor began to exclaim over him: "What had he been drinking?" "Nothing," Tom declared, taking it as a joke.

Well, what had he been eating? "Nothing unusual," Tom tried bantering a little, but the doctor persisted. "You certainly have smelled something out of the ordinary?" Then Tom remembered that that morning he had received a letter from a friend of his in India with a pressed flower in it. In fact, he had the letter in his pocket and showed it to the doctor, saying:

"Yes, that flower has a peculiar odor. I thought of it this morning. But how in the Dickens could you tell?"

But the doctor was all business. He called the flower by a long, botanical name; while in suppressed excitement he told Tom of its strange death-bearing odor that within twenty-four hours from the time it was inhaled meant death. A sharp pain in the heart would be the only warning. The doctor slumped in his chair, head bowed in his hands, unable to meet Tom's horror-stricken eyes.

Tom staggered out into the night as though condemned to the guillotine. His mind refused to act. His limbs seemed paralyzed. It was as though already the shadow of death was gathering about him. Only one thought registered. He must get to his room and bed before the end came. His feet dragged as if chains were upon them. He felt like a man in a nightmare unable to get where he wished to go—but it wasn't a nightmare, he groaned. With the thought his innate courage began to assert itself. He was no coward. If death lay in wait for him just around the corner, as it were, he would at least die game—not like a sniveling coward. He faced about and entered a cabaret. Alone in the gay throng he collected his wits and made his plans.

He had money, but no relatives. He would close his life with a good deed. He would give his money because it was Christmas time and the season for giving. But it must be no mere gift. Some one must receive with this gift something more than its material value. Gifts and Christmas brought Margaret to mind. She was the only person in the world of his own kin and kin that he knew of, and she was only a second or third cousin so far removed that if Margaret, too, had not been an orphan, they would not have recognized the slight blood tie.

They had spent their Christmas together until this year. But the old aunt, who was Margaret's aunt, not his, had passed away early in the year and at their last meeting Margaret had told him her aunt's last expressed wish was that she should marry her aunt's stepson, who had been her unencouraged lover since childhood. He was middle-aged and well-to-do and Margaret had promised to give him her answer on Christmas Eve.

She really didn't love him, she confided to Tom, but the man she thought she loved didn't pay much attention to her; so she would settle her heart and life that Christmas Eve.

That was tonight. He yet had time perhaps to do this big Christmas-giving before his life ended.

Margaret lived and worked in a tiny village, not far from the city. She had no money except what she earned. Tom felt sure it was the eternal pinching and scraping that was influencing her to make her life easier in the only way that offered. He would give her all he had. It was enough to keep her from worrying about her immediate wants for some time and save her from sacrificing her soul and body to a loveless marriage. Perhaps in the meantime the other chap might wake up and realize what a peach of a girl Margaret is.

"What an idiot he must be," Tom uttered to himself, "not to grab up a girl like Margaret when he has the chance."

Riotous thoughts ran through his mind as the slow moving train advanced toward the village. For the time being his errand and not what its outcome might be outweighed the gloom of the impending doom that hung over his own life. His thoughts were on another's trouble rather than his own. He wondered if perchance she might already be married. People did such things on Christmas Eve, and it was late fall when he last talked with Margaret. With the thought came a tightening about the muscles of his heart. It was the first warning, Tom knew.

The train fairly crawled. It was an hour late. Tom remembered it was always an hour or so late on Christmas Eve. It had been so every year, he recalled. He was surprised that he hadn't thought of that before. In the maze of his harassed brain he hoped the deadly odor would not take effect too soon. He had too much to do first.

At last the train drew in at the station. There was no taxi. There never were taxis at Smithville; but other years Margaret had met him. He stepped out, almost expecting to see her laughing a welcoming Merry Christmas at him. He almost felt disappointed, and again that queer little sensation about his heart, recalling to him the importance of losing no time.

Without reason, from force of habit, Tom went directly to the old house of Margaret's aunt. The house was in total darkness but Tom gave the old-fashioned bell a vigorous pull and its ring seemed to solemnly re-echo on the chill wintry air—not at all like a Christmas chime came the unsolicited thought to Tom. The house was dark. It might be empty, but Tom was going to be sure. Again and again he pulled down the bell. Ages it seemed to Tom before a light appeared and big, burly, Peter Kline, arrayed in night apparel, threw wide open the door.

"Is some one sick or dying this night that you raise such a hullabaloo at a man's door?"

He lowered the lamp and peered at Tom:

"So it's you? I'll be gol-darned. You're white as a sheet. What's ails' you? Come in! Come in!"

He fairly pushed Tom in, hanging the door behind them.

All the time Tom had been asking for Margaret, but Peter apparently heard nothing until they were in the cozy living room where embers still glowed in the old-fashioned fireplace.

"Is it Margaret you're seeking? Glad enough I am that you've come to at last. Married to me, did you say? Certainly not. I married the Widow Stone at Thanksgiving. I'm not the sort of man that wants to marry a girl who loves some one else. Margaret lives over at Neighbor Lewis'. Some one's up," Peter unceremoniously ushered Tom out into the night.

Tom never knew quite how he got across the street to the Lewis', but it was Margaret herself who opened the door. Neither did he know how it came about that Margaret was in his arms.

It was later when they got their breath and senses that Tom remembered his real mission, and the fulfillment of the love he had been so slow in realizing broke upon him. The stab at his heart woke him to completely from his dream and he poured out in Margaret the tragedy that hung over them.

He hadn't thought what Margaret would do, but he was entirely unprepared for the burst of gay laughter at the end of his recital to which she had listened apparently so sympathetically.

"Listen, Tom," and she reached for the evening paper. "I read this just before you came in and was interested because he was your friend. Doctor Barnes was this afternoon declared by prominent specialists to be insane. For some time he has been obsessed by the idea that his friends as well as his patients for various and sundry reasons had but twenty-four hours to live, etc.—" No use reading it all, Tom. That's enough. I didn't laugh when I read it, but now I feel like shouting because it brought me you."

"And it brought me you," Tom returned, inwardly rejoicing that he hadn't allowed Fate to make a coward of him. The thought of what it would have meant if he had followed his impulse and gone to bed swept over him for a minute; then he clasped Margaret to him.

"Isn't it a Merry Christmas, though?" He exalted from sheer joy of living.

"A most merry one!" Margaret laughed up at him triumphantly.

Bristol News

One of the largest and saddest funerals ever held in Bristol, occurred on Tuesday of last week when the double funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Krahn was held at the Lutheran church. The services which was to have been held on the previous Sunday, for Mr. Krahn was postponed owing to her death on Sunday just two hours before the time set for the funeral. She was in her accustomed good health until about ten days before her death when she was stricken with a stroke. After his death her fervent desire was to die and be buried with him.

The elaborate floral display proved the high esteem in which they were held by their 113 descendants. Namely 10 living children, 70 grandchildren and 33 great-grandchildren. Their Lutheran pastor paid a very fitting and appropriate discourse both in German and English. Mrs. Vera Smith and Mrs. Nettie E. Gethen sang as duets, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," "Abide With Me," and "Going Down the Valley, One by One," accompanied by Mrs. Blanche Fox. The nearest neighbors of Mrs. Krahn's will greatly miss seeing her take her daily walk.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gethen spent the first of the week with Rev. and Mrs. F. E. Frankson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bacon finished moving into their new home last week.

The Bristol Sunday school are preparing a Christmas program.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"GOD THE PRESERVER OF MAN" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, December 12.

The Golden Text was from Psalm 124: 22, "Let integrity and uprightness preserve me; for I wait on thee, O God, out of all his troubles."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; And did all drink the same spiritual drink: for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ" (1 Cor. 10: 1, 4).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy: "Throughout all generations both before and after the Christian era, the Christ as the spiritual idea—the reflection of God—has come with some measure of power and grace to all prepared to receive Christ. Faith—Abraham, Jacob, Moses and the prophets caught glorious glimpses of the Messiah, or Christ, which typified these seers in the divine nature the essence of Love" (p. 121).

UNFATHOMABLE

WHO can measure the spirit of Christmas—who define it? Born twenty centuries ago beneath the stars, it is neither jollity, contentment, nor conviviality. It is, in part, the sensing of universal brotherhood—the stimulating of good-will to men the world over.

The spirit of Christmas came on the beams of Bethlehem's star, with the accompaniment of the angels' song. While man lives that spirit cannot die.

It should inspire heartier cooperation with every effort of our fellows to achieve; it should be the spark awakening within us that which no creed can define; enabling us to hear the sweet voice of the Babe in the Manger, the firm voice of humble men, and the heartening voice of the Man who, upon the Mount, gave to life its beatitudes. . . . Let us catch the spirit of Christmas.—W. D. Penypacker.

Keeping Christmas for a Day; Why Not Always?

ARE you willing to forget what you have done for other people, and to remember what other people have done for you; to ignore what the world owes you, and to think what you owe the world; to put your rights in the background, and your duties in the middle distance, and your chances to do a little more than your duty in the foreground; to see that your fellow-men are just as real as you are, and try to look behind their faces to their hearts, hungry for joy; to own that probably the only good reason for your existence is not what you are going to get out of life, but what you are going to give to life; to close your book of complaints against the management of the universe, and look around you for a place where you can sow a few seeds of happiness—are you willing to do these things, even for a day?—Then you can keep Christmas.

Are you willing to stoop down and consider the needs and the desires of little children; to remember the weakness and loneliness of people who are growing old; to stop asking how much your friends love you, and ask yourself whether you love them enough to bear in mind the things that other people have to bear on their hearts; to try to understand what those who live in the same house with you really want, without waiting for them to tell you; to trim your lamp so that it will give more light and less smoke, and to carry it in front so that your shadow will fall behind you; to make a grave for your ugly thoughts, and a garden for your kindly feelings, with the gate open—are you willing to do these things even for a day?—Then you can keep Christmas.

Are you willing to believe that love is the strongest thing in the world—stronger than hate, stronger than evil, stronger than death, and that the blessed life which began in Bethlehem nineteen hundred years ago is the image and brightness of the Eternal Love?—Then you can keep Christmas. And if you keep it a day, why not always?—Frank Herbert Sweet. (© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Attic for Billiards New House Feature

© Celotek Institute, Chicago, 1926.

A BILLIARD ROOM in the private home ranks with most people along with a country estate and its artificial lake, a gallery for musicians and other luxuries of the rich. There is no reason, though, why this clean, wholesome game should not be played right at home by every member of the family, without their scattering outside in search of fun and recreation. Very few small homes can afford an extra room just for the billiard table, but practically all have attics sitting on top of them, idle year after year. A little planning, a little work and a little money will turn almost any attic into a first-class home billiard room.

The space required is not great. A small home billiard table is about three by six feet, so that the space necessary for playing may be as small as twelve by fifteen feet. The first consideration is to make the attic comfortable as to temperature all the year round, and the second is to give a good appearance so that you will be proud to take guests up to the new billiard room. These two matters can be attended to in one operation by sealing the under side of the rafters and the side walls with celotek insulating lumber that will offer remarkable resistance to the passage of heat and cold, at the same time doing away with the necessity for lath and plaster. In a room of this sort, the lumber may well be left untreated, simply covering the joints with moid-ing or strips of the same lumber, beveled. In sealing the attic, especial care should be taken where the rafters meet the side walls of the house, as this is the point where most of the hot air escapes from the inside or comes in from the outside, depending on the time of year. In extreme climates or where one is to be almost totally dependent on the heat from the rest of the house for warming the attic, a double layer of the insulating lumber would be better. A small electric, gas or oil heater, will provide what little heat is needed in addition to the heat rising from below.

The floor should be as level as possible although most tables have adjustable devices on the legs. The floor should be covered with a plain piece of carpeting or even left bare. If the house is wired for electricity, extension cords may be run up to the attic and dropped down, one over each end of the table. The length of the cords must be carefully adjusted. Opaque green shades are inexpensive and satisfactory. The racks for the cues and other apparatus may be nailed to the walls. Put serviceable curtains at the windows, add a couple of chairs that can be spared from downstairs and a smoking stand for the men, and you have a billiard room which will keep the boys at home and be a source of pleasure the year round.

Russia World in Itself

The areas controlled by Russia comprehend nearly every material natural resource of modern civilization—minerals of all kinds, base and precious; every variety of timber, excepting tropical; every character of cereals, vegetable and fruit lands—being as near to self-contained as any other power excepting the British empire.

Origin of the Franc

The franc once disappeared altogether. First coined by John II in 1360, its issue ceased with the reign of Charles VI. Its place being taken by the livre. It was not until 1795 that this was converted back into the franc, which became the unit of the French monetary system.

Hard Food Essential

A recent survey among leading dentists disclosed the fact that oral hygienists consider hard food an absolute essential for children. Ordinary diet, they pointed out, consists mostly of soft foods, with the result that the teeth and gums do not get proper exercise, or such essential elements as lime. By including hard, crunchy food in one or more meals every day, the deficiency can be quickly overcome.

Unnatural Pose

In the correct posture, described by a Chicago doctor as an aid to health, a man would seem to be expected to stand with chest and head held just about as they would be in case he ever won an argument with his wife.

Penn Gets a Waterproof Covering for Gridiron

The University of Pennsylvania football team will have a dry playing field in the future, regardless of the elements, according to Ernest B. Cozens, graduate manager of athletics. Cozens announced that the council on athletics has purchased a covering for the gridiron that will be waterproof.

Howard Rhinke, the Athletics' right-handed pitcher, who represents a mid-western company, consummated the sale with the university. He is authority for the statement that big league baseball clubs have found the covering indispensable and that when the cover is removed after rain or snow the field is dry.

The covering will be 90 by 160 yards, and will be of ten-ounce army duck, treated chemically to make it absolutely waterproof.

O, LITTLE CHILD OF BETHLEHEM

By Katherine Edelman

O LITTLE child of Bethlehem! Come to the earth today, Come to a weary, care-filled world This blessed Christmas Day.

Fill every heart with new-born hope, Fill every home with cheer, Bring peace to troubled, burdened souls, Bring brotherhood more near.

Seek out the weary, worn ones, The griefed, the hurt, the weak, And in Thy tender pity bend A loving word to speak.

Bless those who walked Thy loved ways, And pity those who strayed, Bring them within Thy mercy now, And make them unafraid.

Blot out the hurts and hates and fears That rent and severed men, Let understanding's blessed light Unite their hearts again.

Encircle all the earth with love, Let holy peace abide, That all may know in measure full A happy Christmas tide.

Where Santa Goes After Christmas

Reporter Interviews Him to Discover Why He Shows Up Only on Christmas Eve.

CATCHES HIM AT WORK.

Reindeer Stuff Found to Be Merely a Blind for His Real Job.
By Dwight S. Anderson

Where does Santa Claus hide after Christmas?

Unless this genial, bewhiskered old gentleman can show a good reason for appearing in public but once a year, and then retiring for twelve months into seclusion, he is a fake philanthropist.

In some quarters it is doubted whether he personally delivers all the packages that are found at the fireplace Christmas morning; in others it has even been whispered that he is so lazy he gets the inmates of a Home for Rich Old Uncles to lick the Christmas Seals he uses to decorate bundles. Reindeer driving once a year gives him quite a thrill, but as for hard work at times when "newspapers" consider him poor "copy"—Santa Claus simply doesn't deliver the goods.

So the reporter burst into Santa's office one day. "Here, Santa," he said, "is what people are saying about you. How come?"

The room was crowded with children, most of whom were naked to the waist. Two nurses were weighing a boy on a pair of scales in a corner, writing down his weight as well as height on a chart. Santa himself stood in the center of the room bawling the job.

Meets Santa Face to Face.

"Make it snappy," breezed Santa with one of those world-wide grins of his. "I've got twenty more kids to examine before five o'clock."

"Where do you go after Christmas?" the reporter asked.

"Everywhere. Just now I am examining these children for signs of undernourishment or incipient tuberculosis. That's part of what I do all the year round. On top of that, I conduct open-air schools in some places, support preventoria in others, where the children can go and live in the open air and sunshine. I am busy everywhere with health education in the public schools. The best gift I give is health, and I give it, not only at Christmas time, but all the year round."

"Where do you get the money to do all this?" asked the reporter.

"The people give it to me when they buy Christmas Seals, my boy. A penny at a time the money rolls in. Last year I had the tidy sum of $4,750,000 to expend in the United States. I always see to it that practically all the money given me when people buy my seals stays in their state and is spent to fight tuberculosis in their own community."

"Santa!" cried the reporter, "you've been selling Christmas Seals for almost twenty years. Have you accomplished anything?"

"I've helped cut the death rate from tuberculosis in half during that time," answered Santa, "and besides that, there are more than 600 tuberculosis sanatoriums in the country now, and there were only two or three when I started. Confidentially—and here he lowered his voice so the children could not hear him, "the big reason I call on all the boys and girls on Christmas Eve is to take a peek into their homes while they are asleep and see how my health work is coming along."

Where He Gets the Money.

"Do you collect all this money yourself?" the reporter asked.

"Oh, no, no, no, that would be impossible. I can't be everywhere. Plenty of men and women volunteer to collect this money for me—otherwise so huge a sum could never be raised a penny at a time. And almost everybody in the country knows by now that 'Christmas Seals Fight Tuberculosis.'"

"Where do you live, when you are home?" Santa asked.

"Illinois," replies the reporter. "Well," returned Santa, "in Illinois my representative is the Illinois Tuberculosis and Public Health Association."

"Right now," he added, "my Seals are on sale in every community in Illinois."

Santa shook the reporter's hand, "Good you came," he said.

The reporter went away thinking that Santa's health factory had "steamed up" in its boilers all the year round.

Church Notes

Lake Villa Community Church
The services at Lake Villa church were well attended last Sunday. The young people directed by Miss Scott lead the singing. The pastor delivered a very effective message on the place the Bible should have in our every day life.

He evidently believes in its divine origin.

The evening service was dedicated to the interests of the Community. The music was furnished by the Allendale band the boys gave a good account of themselves and played to admiration of the audience who showed their appreciation by the hearty applause.

We, the workers of the church feel encouraged by the fine spirit of loyalty shown on the part of the people of our community. All departments of the church have taken on new activity since the beginning of the year.

It is our desire to serve the larger interests of the community and in order to do this we need the active co-operation of all.

Tactful Thomas

NEW YEAR'S DAY

Christopher G. Hazard

IT WAS with smiling resolution, but also with invincible unity, that Mr. Thomas Spriggs greeted the sunshine of a New Year's morning. He had determined to be socially active and pleasant, but he had failed to reckon with himself. In assuming that everybody would be glad to see him he had forgotten that his previous faithfulness to calling this had not always seemed to hit the mark. It was a kind friend could have advised and convinced him about his faculty of getting into situations wrong and his ability for saying the things he did not mean to say, he might have profited by counsel, but, as the case was, his powers in these directions were unimpaired. He was still unaware of the fact that he was ironical known as Tactful Thomas.

Thus it was that the day opened characteristically as he shook hands with old man Young and, after the usual New Year wish, stepped on his favorite corn by an unfortunate comparison. Mr. Young was on the other side of seventy, but fond of laughing himself as young as ever, and a mutual acquaintance of the two was this side of that meridian, but with the looks of Methuselah. "How old do you think our friend Southers is?" asked Young. "Well, I should say about sixty," replied Mr. Spriggs, "but he looks as old as you do!" The conversation was then abruptly ended.

Nothing daunted by Mr. Young's failure to appreciate his wit, Mr. Spriggs proceeded to find his next victim, gayly wishing himself a happy New Year. On his way to Miss Bump's reception he fell in with Mr. Ignatius Friendly, his pastor for many years, and still holding the office. But he presently fell out with Mr. Friendly as follows: "I see," says Spriggs, "I see that the other church is about to lose its pastor. He's been in our town only about three years and now has a call to Hickville. They don't keep a good man long in Illinois."

Arriving at the Bump homestead just in time to be rather late, Mr. Spriggs again distinguished himself in his anxiety to promote social fellowship by introducing a young lady friend of some forty winters to one of the literary lions present. Unfortunately lately he forgot the name of the lady, so he escaped from his dilemma and fell into a new difficulty by saying, "Professor Fox, let me make you acquainted with—with Miss—with one of our old standbys!"

After this, Spriggs, all unabated, presented himself at the Gladys in time to say to Judge Upright, who was approaching the age limit set upon his office, "It won't be long now, Judge, before you will have to go 'way back and sit down."

Perhaps the most interesting adventure of this colorful day occurred at the Robinson party. There he grew increasingly careless, until he finally took his leave with a crowning bon mot. As Mrs. Robinson kept her upstairs room during the festivities, on account of a rather severe indisposition, her daughter, Miss Allura, had done the honors, and to her he made his adieu: "Give my best regards to your mother, Miss Robinson," he said, "and tell her that I hope that she will soon be down and out!"

Talking with his landlady that evening, Mr. Spriggs heard from her that there are many queer people in the world. When he replied that this would undoubtedly continue to be the case after they both had left it, the good lady overlooked the implication and wished him good night.

Nothing interfered with the slumbers of Mr. Spriggs. No ghostly consciousness of an imperfect New Year's day seemed to stand accusingly about his head. He awoke the next morning to put on the magnifying glasses of conceit with fresh assurance. He will fare forth on January 1, 1927, to commit new depredations upon the conventionalities of society. But people will wish him a happy New Year just the same. They know that he means well with it all and they take his mistakes as contributions to the merriment with which we all desire to enter upon new and promising eras. Some day he will laugh at himself, and, although that would deprive us of amusement, it will do him good. If we could see ourselves as others see us, who would dare to be funny? And if we are queer it avoids monotony and gives us of that variety which has been called the spice of life.

Says Concentration and Determination Will Win

There are women players who go up to the ball and putt without any hesitancy, says Coet Leitch. The results are so good at times that it makes the ordinary mortal wonder whether she ought to adopt a similar casual manner, but in the long run a strong combination of determination and concentration on the green will reap its reward.

Speaking of my own experience, I am convinced that my mind is not on the task in hand half the time. I am endowed with a particularly keen sense of hearing and, when playing before a crowd, I constantly find myself listening to whispered remarks when I should be concentrating to an extent which would make this eavesdropping impossible.

I am constantly asked why I do not learn to putt, but few people realize how difficult it is to practice this part of the game. To my mind there is nothing simpler than to put approach, putt some dead and hole out with regularity from a reasonable distance when nothing is dependent upon the result.

It is a very different story in an important event, for then the yard putt is doubly difficult and the long approach putts become terrifying.

Iowa College First to Place Turkey Day Ban

The beginning of a crusade against Thanksgiving day football by colleges has been announced by the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education.

The intent, it is said, is to educate the American public toward restoration of the fundamental observance of Thanksgiving day as an occasion for serious observance rather than as an athletic university.

The first college to announce abandonment of its Thanksgiving football game is Parsons college, at Fairfield, Iowa, one of the 54 Presbyterian colleges in the United States. The annual Thanksgiving event at Parsons has been the game with Iowa Wesleyan.

It is anticipated that other Presbyterian colleges, will follow suit when their officials have had opportunity to consider the suggestion of the educational board.

Purple Coach Says Pro Games Need Stabilizers

Before it can be on a par with the intercollegiate game, professional football will have to get coaches like Zuppke, Yost and Rockne. In the opinion of Glenn Thistlethwaite, Northwestern coach.

"The pro game needs stabilizers," Thistlethwaite says. "It has drawn large crowds in several instances, but it was the individual players and not the attraction of competing teams that created the interest."

"The professional game may some day be accepted with the same favor as the college game, but I believe that day is a long way off. Professional football needs more organization, a clean set of rules that will be lived up to and a schedule that must be followed."

False Alarm

In 1750 a fanatic predicted an earthquake in London, and thousands of people spent several nights in tents in Hyde park and other open spaces. Special prayers were said and a number of sermons were preached on the coming "disaster," but nothing out of the ordinary occurred.

Santa Claus' Sugar Plums

Mary Graham Bonner

IT HAD always been such a nice, deceptive way in which to speak of specially delicious and delectable sweets—sugar plums.

Her grandmother had called candies and candied fruits and luscious bonbons "sugar plums." And she had always, because she liked candied fruits so particularly, called them "sugar plums."

It had been seventeen years since Rose had first remembered hearing of "sugar plums." She had been three then, and her grandmother had said in the wise, wise way that grandmothers always had of knowing what was what, "Yes, only Santa Claus knows how to get the choicest of sugar plums."

Rose was very busy getting ready for Christmas. It was a busy time the family. There were fifteen plums to be made and plum puddings, and almonds to salt, and fudge to make, and waffles to make, and bells to fix, and fresh candles to put in the candle-sticks—plum candles at this time of the year.

It was a time for general cheer, and from Rose's family a great share of this cheer went forth.

It was not that they were wealthy. They were, in fact, the opposite.

But it was their great satisfaction that by hard work and great energy of spirit they could do a great deal in a small way for every one with whom they came in contact at this season of the year.

Every present, no matter how simple, was prettily wrapped. There was no condescension in their giving. To them it was a big part of their Christmas delight that they knew so many people with whom they could share their Christmas sacrifices and the result of the late hours they kept for weeks before Christmas in their innumerable small preparations. Saving was always such fun throughout the early autumn. Of what fun was saving if it were all to be forever hidden?

There were two presents awaiting Christmas morning for Rose to unwrap. They were for her and she had taken them in when they had arrived, but she had not opened them.

She was curious about these presents. She knew they would be quite simple, but one was from Billy and one was from Joe, and both Billy and newspapers. Miami people have adopted the following slogan "Keep Smiling." To many that is a hard problem.

There are however some things to be thankful for. Hotel rates are very moderate. Real Estate promoters are few and those that remain do not try to sell you the moon or stretches of swamp land for business property. Last year it was possible for one to auto over the entire state of Florida in these huge Real Estate Busses, without any charge what-so-ever.

No one who was not in the storm zone can ever realize the hardships and suffering that these poor unfortunates went thru, without light, heat or water and the wind blowing 120 mile gale with rain coming down in sheets filled with sand. Even yet it is not uncommon to hear of some one dying of injuries or exposure suffered during this storm.

Auto Best for Sight-seeing.

After our return to Melbourne we proceeded to that wonderful section known as the Ridge and West Coast where the Orange, Grapefruit and Tangerine Groves are numerous. Tampa and Jacksonville the best business towns of the state and are growing and will continue to do so. On this trip we passed through Haines City, Lake Wales, Habsen Park, Frostproof, Bartow, Plant City, Tampa, St. Petersburg. Clear water and back to Tampa. On our return we went north to Hrooksville, Crystal River, Hernando and across to Groveland, Orlando and Cocoa. All the roads are now very good in this state and if you wish to see the best part of any state there is only one way and that is by auto. One needs not to get news from home on cold weather and blizzards, as the daily Florida papers have huge headlines of this on their first pages.

Thousands of subdivisions are dead and most of them should have been buried alive as there was no need of them except to sell the suckers from everywhere, but the wonderful Florida climate has not been tampered with so those who want to get away from the winter of the North can still come here and get comfort and pleasure.

Respectfully yours,
C. K. Anderson.

Name "Santa Claus." Where It Came From

"Santa Claus" is a corruption which originated apparently in Flanders or possibly among the Dutch, of the name of St. Nicholas, a saint noted for his love of children and his boundless charity. His "day" was perhaps December 8, originally, but since the displacement of Old Father Christmas, the British representation of the Christmas spirit, he is celebrated at most universally as the Christmas Saint.

When Santa Comes

At Christmas, when Santa Claus comes down the chimney, he usually leaves poor old St. Nick—Father Sage.

Always Room

Until the time runs out there is always room for more Christmas shoppers.

Conditions of Trust

If he has a good reputation and bears himself like a gentleman, trust him, provided he agrees with you in religion and politics and is not your competitor in business or your rival in love.—Houston Post-Dispatch

Methodist Notes

The fifth of the series of sermons "The Itchy" which has proven so interesting, will be given next Sunday morning by Rev. A. M. Kahl at the Methodist Episcopal Church. These sermons deal with the great themes which have caused some dissention in the church of recent years and especially in Tennessee. The sermon Sunday will center around the identification of the Christ Child. Did the wise men know?

The evening service will be shown the life of the Master from the cradle to the cross laying special stress on the nativity which artist of each century have attempted to paint. You will be pleased to see this illustrated sermon. A ready welcome awaits you.

The children of the church school are busy engaged in rehearsing for the Christmas Eve service. The Junior, intermediates and adults will be responsible for the beautiful pageant "The Nativity," a Christmas play in four acts, while the primary and beginners will celebrate their program by song and recitation centering around the Santa Claus.

The general public is most cordially invited to attend all of these services.

HAS 57 YEAR OLD CHERRIES
Henry Olcott, Ridgeland Avenue,
Has Preserves Prepared By Mother Long Ago.

Way back in July 1869 Miss Clara Savage was making plans for marriage which would take place November 1, 1869. In anticipation of the event she decided to make ready a stock of preserves that would last throughout the winter months following her marriage.

Therefore, she picked luscious white cherries from the orchards on the old Jake Van Patten farm at Antioch.

Today, a quart jar of these cherries which were preserved 57 years ago stands in a cabinet in the home of Henry Olcott, 723 Ridgeland avenue. His mother, Mrs. Clara Olcott of 946 North avenue, presented them to him last February. They are in good condition; the syrup is clear, and the family state they expect to keep the jar intact as long as they can.—The Waukegan Daily News.
